Spanish Naval Progress.

The United States government has at last screwed up its courage to the extent of ordering ships that shall make 19 knots an hour. This is equivalent to being about a quarter of a century behind old Spain. The Spanish navy is now in possession of a war vessel, the Reina Regente, that sails at the rate of 21 knots per hour. Probably by the time our 19 knot ships are ready, Spain and other nations will have vessels that can make 25 knots. It seems to be difficult for our navy department to keep posted as to what is being done by other naval powers. What is the use of building antiquated, slow boats, when better and more approved forms are already afloat that can sail around them and run them down.

The Reina Regente has a displacement of 5,000 tons, 12,000 horse power, burns 14 pounds of coal per hour per horse power, and has a very formidable armament. This wonderful vessel was built in 15 months' time. The fastest torpedo boat is also in the Spanish navy. It is named the Destructor, and runs at a speed of 22½ knots or over 26 miles per hour.

Spain is rapidly regaining her ancient prestige on the sea. Spanish steamship lines are fast being extended all over the world. Splendid Spanish steamers now ply between New York, the West Indies, and Mexico. On the Pacific the Spanish steamers are vigorously competing for the coast trade.

An Able Protector.

If there is a more able protector against the incursions of disease than Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, we have yet to learn of it. Against the periodic attacks of fever and ague it affords a sure defense, it renews waning vitality, and counteracts the infirmities of age; it prevents dyspepsia from becoming chronic, and eventually annihilates it. It cures the liver and kidneys when dormant and insures a regular habit of bowels. To the nervous it is of inestimable benefit, imparting steadiness and vigor into an enfeebled physique. The term "delicate health" is usually associated with debility. While the Bitters is procurable, the weak need never despair of physical reinforcement. Persons whose avocations are sedentary and laborious, or involve exposure to unfavorable climatic influences, will also find the Bitters an able protector.

—The Rev. Geo. H. Thayer, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SMITH'S CONSUMPTION CURE." Sold by W. E. Dement.

A Great Social Crisis in Tucson.

It is whispered around that there is a great stir among the so-called society folks. It appears that they don't agree as to who is or is not admissible into "our circle." They ought to be mighty careful about some of the young roosters they countenance, as well as some of the hens they are so much alarmed about. The idea of discriminating against those unfortunate because they have been unfortunate. Give all a show.—Tucson (Arizona) Star.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Its record of forty years is one of triumph over blood diseases.

Master Tommy's father and mother were going to the theatre, and he was in grief because he couldn't go too.

"Shut up, you inconsiderate brat," growled his father; "didn't you hear me say I only had two seats?"

"And to think," whimpered Master Tommy, "that if you hadn't married mamma I might have gone along."

Have you taken a cold? You can cure it promptly with Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. The safest remedy for throat and lung troubles.

People have been known to talk against gambling all their lives on every possible occasion, and then, after all, to go and get married.

An advertisement of "wanted, a man for office work," in a New York paper, brought 406 answers in twenty-four hours.
